STANDARD BENT GLASS CORP SELECTED AS A FINALIST FOR 2009 MANUFACTURER OF THE YEAR AWARDS

Pittsburgh Business Times Recognizes Company as Top Manufacturer in the Region

Pittsburgh, Pa., –October 28, 2009– Standard Bent Glass Corp, a leading custom bent glass, decorative glass, and security glass manufacturer headquartered in Butler, Pa. was recently selected by the Pittsburgh Business Times as a finalist for the 2009 Manufacturer of the Year Award.

Standard Bent Glass is one of the early pioneers in the manufacture of custom glass and has advanced the custom fabrication of curved annealed, laminated and tempered glass for the architectural and building construction markets. The company has set the “standard” for quality and innovation in custom glazing for interior and exterior applications and is known for its unique soft mold process.

“It’s an honor to be nominated as a finalist for the 2009 Manufacturer of the Year,” said Michael Hartley, President and Owner of Standard Bent Glass. “Standard Bent’s commitment to research and development efforts have enabled us to remain at the forefront of new technologies. As a progressive company, we’re able to recognize opportunities that will differentiate us in the marketplace – and that has led us to success.”

Utilizing proprietary technology, Standard Bent Glass can create nearly any desired custom mold to transform a three-dimensional digital computer image into curved glass with complex compound geometrics. Emerging as a primary source for custom architectural artistry and security glass, Standard Bent Glass produces custom glass for spiral staircases, skylights, elevators, stadiums, bridges, curtainwalls and bullet resistant and blast resistant glazing for institutional and military applications worldwide.

The Pittsburgh Business Times will announce the Manufacturer of the Year at an awards dinner on Dec. 3 at the Omni William Penn Hotel.
